

I believe that the Video Relay Services should be allowed to have proprietary equipment for their service, much like cell phones are currently required for specific service providers. Competition for providing better a quality product and service at a value added cost is critical to the provision of quality interpreting services for the deaf and/or hearing impaired individuals that make use of this Video Relay service.